OREGON.

Mrs. Meacham arrived at Yreka on Thursday, and left for the Modoc country immediately.

Base ball breaks out bad at Salem this spring. Several fellows already have their hands in slings.

Jackson county, east of the mountains, contains 15,000 head of cattle, 8,000 head of sheep and 2,000 head of horses, with room and range for five times as many.

The Pleasant Creek mines, in Jackson county, have a greater supply of water this season than has been the case for five years, and the miners are doing well in consequence.

Jesse E. Howard, of Applegate, was pronounced insane by the County Court on Monday of last week and was conveyed to the Insane Asylum at East Portland, in charge of Mr. W. J. Stanley.

Hon. S. F. Chadwick, Secretary of State, and L. Fleischner, State Treasurer, returned from Eugene City on Wednesday, where they have been for the purpose of selecting a site for the State University to be erected in that city. Their report will be given in a few days.

From a gentleman who has just returned from Yamhill county we learn that snow fell in the vicinity of McMinnville and Sheridan last Sunday night and had not entirely disappeared before Monday noon. The same person informs us that the roads up that way are very rough.

The Advocate says: "A note from Linn county informs us of a very large congregation which assembled at Harrisburg on Sabbath last to hear the regular sermon and witness the marriage, by Rev. J. Hoberg, of Mr. Pearl and Miss Weger. Affairs on the circuit are prospering. On the 13th inst. Bro. Hoberg organized a Sunday school at Lake Creek."

The Statesman of Thursday says: "Yesterday morning while Mr. Hawley, an old man nearly eighty years old, was engaged in hauling sand from the river bank, he was run over by a loaded wagon. The wheels passed over his right arm and leg without injuring them in the least. He got up with the remark that "it didn't hurt much, but didn't do any particular good.""

Letter from Lafayette.

LAFAYETTE, April 17, 1873

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Our usually quiet burg has been experiencing its semi annual influx of business from outsiders brought here by the term of Circuit Court. The bar is more than usually well represented in the persons of Messrs. Gibbs, Killin, Catlin, Stott, Gaston and Williams, from Portland, Boise and Mallory, from Salem, Hodgdon and Sullivan, from Polk, Helm, from Linn; Tongue, from Washington, and others, whose names I do not now recall. This array of legal talent, added to our local bar, makes quite a display, and if that number of lawyers does not suffice to procure for all substantial justice, they will at least succeed in getting away with all the loose change in the community. Farmers attending Court—and there are many of them—are all uneasy as so many fish out of water, about their spring crops, and this fine spell is calculated to produce anything but a soothing effect on the mind of a man whose cereals are not getting the benefit of the weather.

Judge Bonham sets about the business of the Court with a spirit that indicates no more accumulations on the docket. Nearly all motions were disposed of the first day of the term. Russel was arraigned on two indictments, for larceny and arson. Absolom Henry was indicted for larceny in a store and his bail declared forfeited. Wilson, indicted for shooting Hauxhurst, at Tillamook, was remanded by some kind of obscure process to await action of the Tillamook grand jury next summer. Caxon was indicted for murder in the first degree, in killing Hasbrook last winter. Outside indications are that the grand jury have investigated the case of Markham, accused of arson. The case of Bruce for attempt at poisoning finishes their criminal business. There are a number of land cases, involving important questions to come up after the jury cases are disposed of.

I see that the Bulletin's St. Jo correspondent is getting wrathy again. His statements in his letter dated the 11th inst., are as incorrect in fact they were in grammar, when he reported the McMinnville Justice of the Peace—in jail for murder. His assertion that the petition was signed by nearly all who were interested to the number of 40 or 50, is flatly contradicted by the record of a remonstrance with a large majority of legal signers thereto. Again, the assertion that the road was throttled by our County Judge is too barefaced, from the fact that the Judge was not in town when the case came up. That the county would not open the road because Mr. Holladay would give us the bridge, and the draw would cost $20 a year to work it, is a statement whose falsehood is only exceeded by its absurdity. Just think of working a draw which requires four men to move it, opening it sometimes as often as four times a day, and doing this for $20 a year! "Logical, truly, St. Jo!"

The whole difficulty with St. Joe is worms. The taxpayers do not feel able to expend $25,000 or $30,000 in opening several roads through morasses and swamps to a depot, when the river is easily accessible and freights are less than one half the rate and fare is less than a third of that by rail. St. Joe has been induced to purchase and improve property at the depot hoping that others would do the same. They don't come forward and he feels beaten, but sticks to the doctrine that "the King can do no wrong," and so growls at his neighbors because they are too sharp to be bitten any more. He chafes and refuses to believe that his collar pinches and so growls and snorts at those who enjoy this. LIBERTY.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

The Lieutenant-Governor has been pleased to appoint Captain Devereaux to be a member of the Pilot Board for British Columbia.

The appointment of Gilbert Malcolm Sproat, Esq., as Agent General for British Columbia in England, is only now announced.

Four hundred and ninety dollars were contributed by the the citizens of Victoria for the relief of the family of Mr. John Williams, who perished on the Geo. S. Wright.

The terminus of the Canada Pacific Railway has been located by the Dominion Government. According to the Victoria Standard, the town of Esquimalt is to be the place beyond doubt.

The Guardian says sugar brokers, London, have tested the sample of the beet sugar made by Mr. Picht, at New Westminster, and that they have pronounced it fully equal to clayed cane sugar.

A telegram received by Mr. Lindhard, from Lightning Creek, announces that the Vancouver Company are taking out 40 oz. to the set of timbers. This claim lies next below the Victoria claim, and about one mile below the well known Spruce claim.

"The Colonist of the 15th says H. M. S. Scout arrived on Sunday from the Sandwich Islands, having made the run, under sail, (with the exception of five hours) in fourteen days. A ball was given on board the Scout at Honolulu in honor of the new King, who was present with his Court. While on the passage to this port a man fell overboard from the Scout, but was rescued after an immersion of twenty minutes. The Scout will refit and sail in about three weeks for Honolulu and home."

A New York dispatch of the 11th inst. says: Mr. Sparks, agent for the White Star Line, announces that in conformity with the wishes of the contributors to the fund of $2,000 collected in Chicago, the sum will be set aside for the purchase of suitable rewards for the officers and crew of the Atlantic who were conspicuous in saving life, also, for rewarding Rev. Mr. Ancient and the fishermen, who so nobly assisted.

LATEST FROM THE FRONT!

THE MODOCS CANNOT GET WATER

Making it Hot for the Red Devils!

The Lava Bed is Ours

CONTINUED FIGHTING!

GALLANT CONDUCT OF THE TROOPS

Five Indians Killed.

LAVA BED, 9 P. M., April 16.—During the night our troops held the same position occupied at sunset yesterday evening. A hotly contested fight took place on Col. Green's left this morning. The Indians endeavored to get to the lake for water, but our troops succeeded in keeping them away.

A dispatch was received from Mason's camp at 7 A. M., saying that some Modocs had passed out on his left, and were on his flank and rear.

During the night, the mortars under command of Maj. Thomas, kept up a fire on the Modoc camp which kept them very much amused. The Indians could be heard yelling and shouting at an awful rate.

At 9 o'clock this morning the troops under Col. Green were ordered to move forward from the position they had held during the night. The whole line started with a cheer and before 10 A. M., had reached the top of the ridge next to Jack's camp which was so hotly contested yesterday and which had been nearly deserted today when our men had gained this position, cheers could be heard along the whole line. Orders were then given to sweep the lava bed, and a dispatch was sent by signal to Bernard ordering him, in case the Modocs had got out on Col. Mason's left, to pursue them immediately with the cavalry and give them no rest.

10 o'clock A. M.—Our troops have gained considerable ground, and firing is becoming more frequent. The general impression is, that the lava bed is ours.

Orders have been given to Col. Mason to move his right forward as rapidly as possible and join Col. Green's left. This will cut the Modocs off from water.

From 10 to 12 o'clock there was considerable firing from the south of the lake. Only a part of the Modocs could have got out on Mason's left, as the Indians can be heard in the vicinity of Jack's cave. The mortars, which have ceased firing since daylight, have been ordered to a new position within 600 yards of the cave and near the water of the lake.

At about 12 o'clock, Col. Green's and Mason's commands effected a junction which entirely cuts off the Modocs from the water. After this movement was effected, occasional firing was heard at different parts of the line, and it was decided not to push our men on the Indians' strong hold, as we might lose many without killing an Indian, and if we could keep them from water they would have to leave their position, and we could not find them in a stronger one.

Our losses in the two days fight have been five killed and ten wounded. The only officer yet wounded is Lieut. Eagan, Company G, 12th Infantry, flesh wound in the left leg. He is doing well. No junction has been formed between Green's right and Mason's left. Five Indians only are reported killed, and of these we have some scalps.

None of our killed or wounded have yet fallen into the hands of the enemy. It is evident that if our men can hold their position on the Lake shore, Mr. Modoc will have to leave or surrender. A heavy fire of musketry is now going on near the Lake shore, the Indians evidently fighting for water.

Every one who has seen our troops in action speak of them in highest terms.

THE TERRITORIES.

Hon. Wm. H. Clagett has been appointed Special Council of the General Government to investigate the alleged frauds against the Indians of Montana.

A Montana paper says: All the stage horses from Ryan to Deer Lodge, Deer Lodge to New Chicago, and Deer Lodge to Blackfoot, have the epizoo. Beyond that the horses have recovered or are not yet attacked.

A Chinaman at Seattle last week took a rope, climbed a tree, tied one end of the rope around a limb and the other around his neck, and jumped, but alas for John's hopes of swift transition to the bosom of his "Josh," the rope broke, and with a dislocated arm and a peeled proboscis he sorrowfully returned to his washer house.

The Montanian says: "By authority of the last legislature, Capt. H. N. Blake, District Attorney, was appointed to compile a report of all the cases so far heard in the Supreme Court of Montana. The reporter informs us that he has now nearly completed the compilation and that the printed report will appear some time in July.

A Whitman county correspondent of the Courier says: "Parties from Walla Walla county knowing our wants have come to Colfax time and again for the express purpose of building a mill, and one noticeable feature in this whole matter is that when they leave here they go away highly pleased with the enterprise and after they get back to Walla Walla we hear no more from them. Now what we want is some man that has a mind of his own and cannot be influenced by others, to come here and put up a good flouring mill and we will guarantee him all the wheat he can grind and more too. There is a good water power here at the county seat with a fall of twenty-one feet. Colfax is getting to be quite a lovely place and is destined to eclipse everything between Walla and the R. R. and control a trade of no little importance."

In Whitman county, W. T., thousands of acres of land on the Pacific slope are now lying vacant while perhaps not over five hundred claims have been located. The face of the country reminds the observer of the prairies of the Western States but is of a more rolling and undulating nature, covered with a rich herbage of the best bunch grass and interspersed with numerous springs and rivulets of the best pure cold water; in fact these springs are so numerous that one may be found on almost every quarter section of land. Between fifty and seventy five thousand bushels of wheat were raised in that county last year, and it is estimated that this amount will not any more than supply the settlers with seed for this year, and yet, strange to relate, they have no flouring mill between Snake and Spokane rivers, a vast area of country, uninhabited four years ago, but now dotted all over with the improvement of energetic farmers and some of the land already in a high state of cultivation.

IN BAD REPUTE.—The St. Louis Globe says: The Indianapolis Sentinel talks of the recent Indiana Legislature as one of the most worthless bodies ever assembled in the State. We cannot allow Indiana to beat Missouri on a point like that. We will back the Legislature now in session at Jefferson City against any similar body that has assembled in this country since the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus, for stupidity, for uselessness, for depravity, and for all those qualities which convert honest men into rogues and sensible men into asses. This proud distinction cannot be wrested from Missouri by any of her sister States, and as for Indiana, we rather admire the impudence of the Sentinel in trying to cheat us of our well earned laurels.

Kiss a woman, if you will; tread on her corn, if it makes you happier, stay till eleven o'clock when you call, if you prefer it, or even criticise her bonnet with severity; but, as you value your peace of mind and her happiness, let her back hair alone.

LATER

IN THE LAVA BED!

Modocs Attempt to Break the Cordon!

THEY ARE REPULSED!

THE BATTLE SCENE!

YREKA, April 17.—Mr. Costello, a special courier, arrived at noon, having left headquarters at the lava bed at 9 o'clock last night, with the news of yesterday's work. Both the Union and Journal issued lengthy extras.

Last evening the Modocs had a big fire in their camp, and Maj. Thomas dropped a shell directly into it, provoking a frantic war-whoop and a sudden extinguishing of the fire. Another shell was dropped in the same locality, followed by yells of pain and dismay. The Modocs then appeared and CHALLENGED THE SOLDIERS TO COME OUT AND FIGHT.

Another shell was the answer, and they were driven back. At 4 A. M., after another fight, the Modocs gave up their attempt to break through the lines and retired, it was thought, to their lair, scattering shots only being fired at men who attempted to advance upon them. At 9 o'clock, Col. Green's command moved forward from the position gained on Thursday, and soon occupied the ridge next to Jack's camp. Col. Mason then moved his right forward as rapidly as possible to form a juction with Green's left, thus cutting the Modocs off from the lake, and from their only source of water supply. This junction was effected about noon.

The Journal extra says: At 2 P. M., the mortars were throwing shells in excellent range. Col. Green fell back behind a ledge awaiting the Modocs, should the shells drive them out. After some firing, a solitary Indian replied, though yells were frequent. On the fifth shell there came a raking fire and a small party of men sprang out of a chasm and came into the lines amid a shower of bullets. The falling back was caused by the Modocs flanking and opening cross fire. Col. Miller, in attempting to form a junction with the Warm Spring Indians, missed them, and as he swung down into a great chasm

THE MODOCS SPRANG UP AND CUT HIM OFF

with thirteen men. Miller fortified himself. They fought for their lives until the mortars opened. They withstood fire until 4 P. M., when the shells began falling in their midst and they broke cover, dashing across the ledge and losing two men and one wounded. The line was re formed and held round the Modocs. Mason signalled Modocs on his rear and flank, trying to get out. At 7.45 Mason's men were advancing toward Indians seen on the bluff. Heavy firing at 8 on Col. Greene's right. At 9 Greene's whole line was moving. Mason at 9:45 signalled Modocs and the Cavalry are ordered to pursue. At 11:30, all quiet, and half an hour later, heavy firing in the Modoc stronghold. At 1:30, the Warm Spring Indians report three more "good Modocs," making four to-day so far.

LEAVING THE LAVA BED,

9 P. M.—The terrible fire has just ceased where the Modocs tried to break through to the lake. The intention is to keep the line, and prevent them from getting water. There will be more severe fighting before their works are carried. McManus has been recovered, and is not injured, he having hid in the rocks when his mule was shot.

Castello says the blaze of musketry firing along the lake shore about the time of his departure last night was reminding him of prairie fires of early Western times. He believes the Modocs made a strong effort to escape by the lake, or to get water, and were completely repulsed, from the appearance of the firing and the length of its continuance. The Indians are certainly disheartened. He watched them with a glass at long range at different times during the day's fight, and they were running from one point of rocks to another back and forth, with no apparent strategic motive, seemingly bewildered by the advance of our forces. He learned of 24 casualties—5 killed and 19 wounded, some only slightly. Wm. Smith, bugler, Battery M, 4th Artillery, was killed. Private Harmon, Battery E, was severely wounded.

The Warm Spring Indians fought like heroes, skulking upon the foe, ever ready to take and hold any advantage. They lost one, killed.

Safety of Railroad Crossings.

The S. F. Bulletin says: The Pennsylvania Railroad company has made arrangements with the city of Pittsburgh, by which the railway track is to be carried under all the streets which it is desirable to cross, or over them at such a heighth as to be out of the way of teams and pedestrians. The track is nowhere to cross on a level with the streets. The cost of this improvement will be not less than a million of dollars. The company will be largely compensated not only by the additional safety secured, but by the increased facilities for doing business. There will be no hindrance; trains will cross from one side of the city to the other quickly, because the crossings will at all times be clear of obstructions. In Baltimore a tunnel is to be constructed so that all the through railway transportation will be under the city.

The loss of life in large cities by placing railway tracks on the same level as streets, is fearful. In England, we believe, no railway crossing is permitted on the same level as the street or public road.

A CONNECTICUT LEGISLATURE.—Some years ago a veteran Democrat was elected to the Legislature from the town of Hartland. Knowing the difficulties of travel between the place and Hartford, he started early and got here the day before the General Assembly convened, and immediately proceeded to the Times office. A. E. Burr, the senior editor, was engaged in producing a strong political leader, for that evening's paper, and his attention was first attracted to the presence of the visitor by his laying down upon the desk what, upon examination, proved to be the Representative's credentials as a member of the Legislature. Handing the paper back to him, Mr. Burr said. "You want to take this to the office of the Secretary of State." "Where is that?" inquired the gentleman from Hartland. "In the State House building," was the answer: "you take it there and it will be all right." "I don't know anything about the Secretary of State's office," positively spoke the aged Representive, "and I don't care a d— where it is, I am a Democrat, and I know if I leave this thing here in the office of the Times it will be all right—you keep it!" And Mr. Burr could not prevail upon the old man to take the document with him. You couldn't fool him with a Secretary of State when there was a live Democrat to get at.—Hartford (Conn.) Courant.

HOW THE EXPERIMENT FAILED.—Two Washington gentlemen who lived opposite each other, wishing to take an early morning train, resorted to one of the devices of their boyhood, and passed a cord across the street, each tying an end of it to his big toe, and solemnly agreeing that he who first awoke should arouse the other. But alas! both overslept themselves and the first down town car struck the cord and dragged them from their beds with lightning rapidity. The window sashes have been replaced in their rooms, and when their new boots with telescope additions are finished, they will again take their walks abroad.

Sally, what have you done with the cream? The children cannot eat skimmilk for breakfast." "Sure, ma'am, and it isn't myself that would be afther giving the scum to yez. I tuk that off and gave it to the cats."

EASTERN DATES TO APRIL 17.

WYOMING.

CHEYENNE, April 17.—Two passenger trains arrived at North Platte this evening, which have been snowed in near Kearney station since Monday night. They bring no information in regard to the condition of the road east of that point, as no trains overtook them during the time they were blockaded. Private information received from Omaha by way of the Kansas Pacific Railroad Telegraph, dated the 16th, states that all trains west are at a stand-still, and nothing can be learned of the condition of the road west of that point. All the telegraph lines east of North Platte are prostrated. The train men report them in very bad condition for nearly one hundred miles. There is a large force of repair men out east of Cheyenne, and we hope to have the lines in working order very soon. The Western Union expect to have communication east at a late hour to-night by way of the Kansas P. R. R. line.

UTAH.

From Salt Lake City.

SALT LAKE, April 17.—The Union Pacific Railroad is blocked badly east of the North Platte. An engine was sent East from North Platte this afternoon, and proceeded as far as Plum Creek, when it was found the track could not be passed. The engine returned. Snow and sleet are reported ten feet deep on the track in places and frozen. We are getting up the telegraph lines. No train leaves Ogden east to-morrow in consequence of a lack of cars. The Central Pacific Railroad is all right. A number of passengers are laying over here.

NEVADA.

VIRGINIA CITY, April 17.—O. A. Sanborn, an old and well-known stock operator, died very suddenly this morning. He complained of feeling unwell yesterday and retired between 9 and 10 o'clock. Shortly afterward he was taken with severe cramps. At his request, his wife gave him morphine to quiet his pain. Some time afterward his wife noticing that he breathed heavily, attempted to awake him and sent for a doctor. All efforts to bring him to conciousness proved unsuccessful. No blame is attached to his wife.

About noon to-day, a German named Henry Lie[illegible] committed suicide by shooting himself through the head. Financial difficulties the cause.

SCHELLBURG, April 17.—John Ludwig, alias Dutchy, was shot and instantly killed by E. B. Needham this evening. Dutchy had been drinking and had insulted and abused several citizens of the town, threatening to kill some parties. He was very abusive in his language to Needham, and threatened to carve him up, when Needham went after his shot gun and meeting him in Duren's store shot him, the charge taking effect in the right side and penetrating the lungs, killing him instantly.

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 17.—Henry S. Foote, former Governor of Mississippi, arrived last night.

White prisoners were placed in the chain gang yesterday, and set to work cleaning out sewers. This is the first time in several years that such prisoners have been employed in that way.

Bogart's case will be resumed at 11 o'clock, A. M., and witnesses will be introduced on the question of his desertion from the navy.

Amasa Walker will address the Chamber of Commerce at 3½ P. M. to day on financial matters.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 17.—In the Bogart case to-day the Judges decided the statute of limitations running against the offense alleged and the question of former conviction or acquittal form no part of the inquiry in the case. Counsel for the prisoner then proceeded to proof as to whether Bogart was ever in the naval service, and whether he was discharged from it. A. J. Clarke was called and sworn; was paymaster on the receiving ship Vermont; was detached from the vessel about the 10th of March, 1868, knew Bogart was my clerk; I appointed him; I did not discharge him; instructed him sometime in November to resign, or asked him to resign. He asked me when he should go. I told him when I had secured some one competent to take his place. I took a man into the office about the 1st of December; appointed him clerk after Bogart left, which was on Dec. 1st, 1868; did not know when Bogart left, but he was to go when I got another clerk. On cross-examination witness said the commanding officer of the ship had to approve the appointment. Left the ship about 3 P. M., Dec. 1st, and saw nothing of Bogart afterward; did not know he had gone till the morning of the 2d; inquired as to his whereabouts but did not learn. I inquired here on opening the safe [witness did not conclude his answer, the District Attorney saying he would not press it]. Bogart did not come back until he was brought back; saw him on the ship in custody.

W. A. Clapp testified that he was paymaster's [illegible] on the Vermont, and that Bogart's successor, Col[illegible] came on the ship Dec 1st; knew occasion of Bogart's going; he told me he was going.

Bogart was next called, and the District Attorney objected to his competency. The Court sustained the objection.

Paymaster M. C. Spaulding, was then sworn to identify a general order of the Navy Department accepting Bogart's resignation on the 10th of December 1868, by the Secretary of the Navy. Larimer says that they can show that his resignation was accepted under an entire misapprehension of facts. He objected to the introduction of the order, and the question was discussed as to the admissibility of the document. Judge Sawyer holding it incompetent; Hoffman that it was competent. Judge Sawyer waived his objection, and the order was finally admitted and this closed the evidence on the point of desertion. Larimer said he would offer no oral testimony, but read in evidence a certificate of the Chief Clerk of the Navy that there is no record on file of the resignation of Bogart, or the tender of a resignation or acceptance in the case.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 17.—Gen. Schofield has sent forward several hundred troops, including two batteries of artillery to reinforce Col. Gillem in the lava bed. They left this afternoon from the Presidio.

Hon. Amos Walker delivered an address before the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon. He spoke against the introduction of paper money into the State, saying it would be profitable to only a few speculators, and the rates of interest would advance largely. He spoke in praise of the advantages of California as an agricultural, mining, and manufacturing State. His address was listened to with marked attention.

R. W. Franklin has been sentenced to the County Jail for three years for swindling various parties in this city.

The Bogart habeas corpus case is not yet determined.

INTERIOR CALIFORNIA DISPATCHES.

SAN DIEGO, April 17.—Reports from Sonora, Mexico, date of March 21st state that the Apaches are still making ravages among the people, though no murders are reported for the last week. Various parties of the Apaches have been pursued across the line into Arizona. The Prefect of Altar writes that persons who recently arrived from the Apache Reservation declare that Cachise is preparing to invade the districts of Altar and Magdalena.

BENICIA, April 17.—Another large quantity of war material for cavalry, also ordnance and ammunition for battery use, was sent from Benicia arsenal to-night, for the Modoc country.

SAN RAFAEL, April 17.—A most horrible murder was committed at Cloma at about half past 5 o'clock this afternoon. A Spaniard named Ambrosia Carrero shot and instantly killed Senora M. Loretta Garcia, widow of the late Don Rafael Garcia. It appears that Carrera went to the house of Mrs. Garcia and deliberately placing a pistol at her head, fired. The assassin then ran out of the house, a short distance into the brush, and shot himself, dying almost immediately. No reasons are assigned for the act. The assassin was a worthless fellow. Mrs. Garcia was about sixty years of age, and was universally respected.

VALLEJO, April 17.—This evening, at 8 o'clock, Commodore Watson, U. S. N., one of the oldest and most popular naval officers on this coast, died in an apoplectic fit.

FRIDAY MORNING APRIL 18 1873

The Battle on the Lava Bed

The news from the Lava Bed is of the most exciting character. The troops having closed around the Modoc band the fighting is of course of that desperate character which only such a desperate situation can produce. All day on the 15th and 16th the dispatches say, the fight raged fiercely, the Indians firing from one ledge of rocks as long as possible and then falling back to the next to renew the contest. It is difficult to make out from the reports just what was the result of the second day's fighting as regards the relative position of the troops and the savages. At the close of the first day's operation Jack seemed to have been driven into his stronghold and it appeared not unlikely that the end of the contest was nigh. The dispatches of the next day speak encouragingly of that day's operations but it does not clearly appear just what the actual gains of the day, in the matter of position, were. There is no definite statement of the casualties thus far. At the close of the first day's, there were five killed and ten wounded among the whites. Of course it is not certainly known what loss the Modocs have sustained.

Unless Jack shall find a means of escape from his present beleaguered position it will matter little how strong his natural fortifications are. Without access to the means of subsistence, which are not found at his cave, he cannot long withstand the siege. The question of surrender or starvation is simply one of time, and of very short time at that. But the country to the northeast of the Lava Bed, we are informed by a gentleman who is well acquainted with the region, is a timbered region—timbered with juniper for a short distance, and then with pine forests to an indefinite extent. Should the Indians succeed in making their way to these timbered districts it would be exceedingly difficult to accomplish anything in the way of pursuit. The mountains and streams, during the summer season, abound in all the subsistence the Indians need, and all the trails and safe retreats are as familiar to them as their lava beds. A small band of Indians might defy—or elude—several times their number of soldiers in such a country until the snows of winter should drive them into the lowlands. It is to be hoped that another day's dispatches will announce that all possible avenues of escape have been sealed up. The escape of the Indians to the mountains would most likely involve a campaign that would last all summer.

A Madrid letter says there seems to be little ground to hope for such a restoration of harmonious relations between the radicals and conservatives in the Spanish Assembly. While the Carlists are making inroads in the north and northeast, and discontent is taking hold of the minds of the people in all parts of the country, the Ministry, instead of being a grand standing committee of safety, is engaged in the paltry business of deciding party bickerings, and settling questions of no more importance to the country than the most abstruse propositions of metaphysics. The army, meanwhile, is reported as having little faith in the Republican Government, and the officers especially are outspoken in the preference for a Constitutional Monarchy. Small hopes, indeed, can be reasonably entertained for the future of such a Republic as that.

The most delicate thing we have observed of late in the journalistic line may be credited to Portland, Maine. An ignorant or careless, or possibly drunken druggist, in filling a prescription, committed a blunder by which the patient was poisoned to death. A newspaper of that city refers to the matter very feelingly, and declines to mention the name of the apothecary because "he feels so keenly the result of his carelessness." The paper that proposes thus to conceal the name of a man who is pursuing an occupation in which he is dangerous to the community in which he lives, has in all probability made no inquiry to ascertain how keenly the victims of this criminal carelessness feel it when they are dying from the effects of the poison they have taken instead of medicine.

A warrant drawn upon the County Treasury was shown us yesterday, bearing the endorsement "NOT PAID FOR WANT OF FUNDS," over the signature of the County Treasurer. This endorsement was dated April 16, 1873—last Wednesday. Is not this a very unusual state of affairs? Is it not, indeed, wholly without precedent in the history of the county? The Sheriff has but just finished collecting the taxes, and there remains nothing but the delinquent list to be collected, and yet at this time of the year, when it would be naturally expected that the Treasury would be full to repletion the current expenses of the county can not be paid for want of funds. At this rate what will be the condition of things at the close of the current year.

A London dispatch explains the support which the Liberal party in England Scotland and Wales gave Gladstone, and the final question of confidence. It is stated that while the Liberal party disliked the Irish University Bill, still, on a question of confidence, they preferred one bad bill to a Tory Government that was likely to be the parent of many. It is even supposed that the thirty six Irish Liberals who helped to turn him out of Premiership were rejoiced secretly to see his return. They had voted against him rather than misrepresent their constituencies, but they felt at the time that they were in all probability involving a rule far less favorable to their views and plans.

On the 4th inst a Medical Examining Board (Civil Service) met in Washington. It is composed of Drs Baxter, Hood and Stanton and they will, it is said, inaugurate a new system of selecting surgeons for duty by a most thorough competitive examination. At their first meeting they held such an examination for four surgeons of the Pension Bureau.

Castelar says the Spanish Republic owes its existence to "the inflexible logic of events." The civilized world are waiting with considerable interest and not wholly without incredulity, to see whether the inflexible logic that could speak the Republic into existence will prove itself equal to the task of keeping it alive.

A Washington dispatch of recent date states that the disgraced Pomeroy is an active competitor for Caldwell's vacant seat. Caldwell it is said, is going to farming. It is to be hoped that in this honorable occupation he may regain some of his lost honesty.

From Shedd's a friend writes that during the present favorable weather seeding is progressing favorable.

The Geneva Tribunal

In a review of Caleb Cushing's new book, "The Treaty of Washington—Its Negotiation Execution and the Discussions Relating Thereto," the Boston Advertiser says

It is both historical and critical, and certain to attract attention and provoke discussion here and abroad. The book is dedicated to Count Sclopeis and contains 280 pages. Appended are extracts taken from various parts of the work. The British and American Governments are first contrasted at considerable length, and in a style shown in the two following paragraphs

Now, the subordinance of the power of the Crown in Parliament, and of that of Parliament in the House of Commons, and the commitment of all these powers to transitory nominees of the House of Commons are facts which, a cabinet, have produced the result that government in England is at the mercy of every gust of popular passion every storm of misdirected public opinion, every devious impulse of demagogic agitation—nothing corresponding to which exists in the United States

How different is the spectacle of government in the United States! Here, the President—that is, the prime minister of the sovereign people—is placed in power for a fixed period of time, during which he is politically independent of faction, and can look at the temporary passions of the hour with calmness so as to judge them at their true value, and accept or reject their voice according to the dictates of public duty and the command of his conscience. Neither he nor any of the members of his Cabinet are subject to be badgered by factious or unreasonable personal interrogation in either houses of Congress

Mr Cushing gives personal sketches of the five members of the board of arbitration, and then discusses the decision of the court and Sir Alexander Cockburn's dissent

Sir Alexander Cockburn, as one of the arbitrators, declining to assent to the decisions, presented a statement of his "reasons," which, without reading, the tribunal ordered to be received and recorded

Thereupon, in an appropriate address Count Sclopis declared the labors of the arbitrators to be finished and the tribunal dissolved

In the universal expression of mutual courtesy and reciprocal good will there was but one exception, and that exception too conspicuous to pass without notice

The instant that Count Sclopis closed, and before the sounds of his last words had died on the air, Sir Alexander Cockburn snatched up his hat, and without participating in the exchange of courteous leave takings around him, without a word or sign of courteous recognition for any of his colleagues, rushed to the door and disappeared in the manner of a criminal escaping from the dock, rather than of a judge separating, and that forever, from his colleagues of the bench. It was one of those acts of discourtesy which shock so much when they occur that we feel relieved by the disappearance of the perpetrator

The British arbitrator, who so frequently in the course of the conference acted as a party agent rather than a judge, had been occupying himself in the preparation of a long argument on the side of Great Britain, in which he throws off the mask and professedly speaks as the representative of the British Government. He withheld this argument from the knowledge of the tribunal at the proper time for its presentation as the "reasons" of an arbitrator. At the last moment, without its being read to the tribunal, or printed for the information of agents and counsel, as a resolution of the tribunal, adopted on his own motion, required, he presents this argument as his "Reasons ... for dissenting from the decision of the tribunal of arbitration." The title of the document is a false pretence, as we shall conclusively show in due time, the act was a dishonorable imposition on the tribunal and on both governments, Great Britain as much as the United States

The relations of the British Provinces to the United States are plainly discussed

War between the United States and Great Britain is now a contingency almost inadmissible as supposition, and so, of course, is war between the United States and Canada, a possession of Great Britain. Nevertheless, the capability of a country to maintain itself by force, if need be, is one of the elements of its political life, and therefore can not be overlooked in considering the condition of the Dominion of Canada

In regard to Canada the inquiry is the more important, seeing that military force depends in part on geographical facts, which, in her case, equally as to peace or war, and for the same reasons, place her at disadvantage on the side of the United States.

Thus, if it would be possible to conceive of two countries which would appear to be naturally destined to constitute one government, they are the United States and the British Provinces, to the special advantage of the latter rather than the former

We therefore can afford to wait. We have nothing to apprehend from the Dominion Pacific Railway. If constructed it will not relieve Ontario and Quebec from their transit dependence on the United States. We welcome every sign of prosperity in the Dominion. With the natural limitations of her growth, and the restricted capacity of her home or foreign markets, her prosperity will never be sufficient to prevent her landowners and her merchants from looking wistfully toward the more progressive population and the more capricious markets of the United States. Her conspicuous public men may be sincerely loyal to the British crown, many of the best men of Massachusetts, New York and Virginia were so at the opening of the American revolution, but neither in French Canada nor in British Canada, nor in the marine provinces, do any forces of sentiment or interest exist adequate to withstand these potent natural and moral causes, or to arrest that fatal march of events which have rendered nearly all the rest of America independent of Europe, and cannot fail sooner or later to reach the same consummation in the Dominion of Canada.

The spirit of independence is a rising tide, in Canada as elsewhere in America, which you see in its results, if not in its progress. It is like the advancement of the sun in the sky, imperceptible as to movement, but plain as to stages and ultimate destination. It is an event which we would not precipitate by violence if we could, and which we scarcely venture to say we wish for, lest in so doing we should possibly wound respectable susceptibilities, but which we nevertheless expect to hail some day with hearty congratulation, as an event auspicious alike to the Dominion and the United States

General Canby's Last Report.

The following telegram from the late General Canby was received by General Sherman on the 11th inst. It was probably the last dispatch the lamented Canby ever sent. General Canby states that he had seen the instructions sent to the Peace Commissioners by the Secretary of the Interior, and goes on to say that if the Modocs surrender as prisoners of war the General Government would have paramount and exclusive jurisdiction over the cases of all "The same result would be secured by treaty but are not treaties with Indian tribes prohibited by recent legislation? A reservation within the limits of either California or Oregon would not bar State jurisdiction until after its cession by those States, and would have no retroactive effect, and for crimes committed within the limits of such reservation it is doubtful, under Justice Miller's decisions in Kansas reservation cases, whether State jurisdiction would not prevail. The murders of citizens were committed beyond the limits of any reservation, and within the jurisdiction of the two States, and of course anterior to any arrangement with the Modocs. I do not question the right or power of the General Government to make any arrangement that may be thought proper, but I think they should make such as to secure a permanent peace, together with a liberal and just treatment of the Indians. In my judgment, a permanent peace cannot be secured if they are allowed to remain in this immediate neighborhood. The Modocs are now sensible that they cannot live in peace on Lost river and have abandoned their claim to it but wish to be left in the lava beds. This means a license to plunder and a stronghold to retreat to, and was refused. Their last proposition is, to come in and have an opportunity of looking for a new home not far away, and if they are sincere in this, the trouble will be soon ended. But there has been so much vacillation and duplicity in their talks that I have hesitated about reporting until some definite result was attained. All the movements of troops have been made deliberately and cautiously so as to avoid collision and to impress the Indians that we have no unfriendly intent. Thus far we have succeeded very well, but their conduct has given so much reason to apprehend that they are only trying to gain time, that I have organized a party of scouts to operate with the troops, if they should go to the mountains or renew hostilities."

An Oregon Vendetta

The statements below in regard to the Whitley and Glaze feud in Polk county, we give because we are assured that matters have been carried to such lengths, that the entire population round about the county seat are feeling a lively interest in the question of where and what the end will be. We have endeavored to ascertain the truth, and have even refrained from publishing a great deal that we have received as reliable, because we have not been fully satisfied of its correctness. And even now the statements we present may be inaccurate in some important particulars, so great is the difficulty of obtaining information in a wholly unvarnished condition in regard to matters of this nature. We make these preliminary remarks in order to guard against the injury that is often done to an individual by the publication of that which is inaccurate in its details, though it may be truthful in its general features.

When the Whitley party entered the saloon that evening the elder Whitley looked around on quiringly and asked if there was any one sick there who wanted anything of him. Glaze, no whit daunted but still determined on a peace policy, said "I guess not." It may be that young Whitley was a sacrifice to the many repetitions of that popular tale of the little hatchet. Whitley also said that he wished somebody would try to put a head on him that night, that was when his son stood up with his little hatchet in hand. After the battle he made his exit from the premises on his hands and knees. No more free fight on his. Then Whitley played the reform role, said he wanted to be a better man and be friends with all. He made a solemn compact with Glaze the elder, who is a worthy citizen and a church going one, that he would quit the war path. A Modoc couldn't have been more apparently sincere. But inside of a fortnight there was proof that he was only a Modoc. Time after time his plans for injury to Glaze have been foiled. Whitley, it is said, has money and he dominates a band of scoundrels, a number of whom have been in the State penitentiary, and several of whom have been pardoned on his representation and efforts. He is probably the richest man in Polk county. An indictment having been found against him in the Circuit Court, citizens have for two months past suspected that a plot was on foot to burn the Court House down to destroy that indictment. The saloon of Glaze has been burned, and several adjoining stores went up in the same flames, and many of the citizens suspect that the incendiarism is part of the same game. Men do not tell what they know or how they know it, because they say the lives of the witnesses would be endangered. A rule of terror envelopes Dallas, law is ineffectual, justice is not swift enough, the time may not be distant when it will be swiftly executed without law. Thus lawlessness shall be stopped, for the people are beginning to tire of the existing state of things, and appearances point to the organization of a vigilance committee, and the need of it is illustrated by the villainous scheme we give a few details of, as follows

Whitley, senior, has lately been bound over on a charge of conspiracy against the life of Reuben Glaze, the father of Til. Glaze. It is alleged that one of his tools, found and brought from Portland for the purpose, was to do the job, but he has betrayed his employer to the most respectable men of Polk county, and that Whitley, when faced by these same men, the County Judge and County Clerk being of the number, has confessed that the story is true, and that he did hire Charley to do the murder

Of course he now denies it and his lawyers are trying to bring him out of it, but the community of Dallas know the men who have traced the conspiracy out and foiled it, and they know all the circumstances, which make positive proof, but Sutton which should be told first to a Jury

A vendetta is supposed to be a war of extermination carried on for years, and our Oregon vendetta may lack something, from the fact that the war of extermination is only a one sided affair, but it still promises interest in the annals of crime. At the present time Dallas, Polk county, is terrorized to a certain extent, by the plots and doings of a certain man and his accomplices. Five or six years ago a law suit about some cattle was decided against Whitley, the defendant, and he took exception to the verdict rendered, and especially to one of the jurymen named Tilman Glaze. He cursed Glaze very bitterly and treasured his ill will continually. In 1866, at a saloon in Dallas, Whitley and another made a raid on Glaze, but the friends of the latter got him off and he declined to have a fight. It seems that in all the complicated hostilities resorted to by Whitley the young man Glaze has declined to fight, and has only fought in self defense, when it was fight or die, and the facts show that he is very competent in the art of self defense when necessity compels the effort. After the demonstration alluded to in 1868, Til. Glaze told Whitley that he must let him alone in the future or he would certainly get hurt.

In the course of time, Glaze and one McCann started a saloon in Dallas, and last summer "old" Whitley and two of his friends undertook to patronize the concern, and "Whit's" two friends (people in Dallas call him "Whit" for short) quarrelled over a game of cards played for drinks, and had a fight. Glaze interfered and said he had given bonds to keep an orderly house, and they mustn't fight on his premises. He was liberal, under the circumstances, and gave the option of the back yard, which wasn't licensed or under bonds, or the street which was their own premises as much as any body's, but they wanted to fight it out on that line, and old Whit interfered to secure them that privilege. "Old Whit" said he was running that scrimmage, and when he shoved his hand into a back pocket significantly, young Glaze drew a pistol from behind a counter in a great hurry and Whitley got knocked down thereby and received severe injuries. We never heard how the rest of the fight came on, but we learn that Whitley recovered from his physical injuries though his mind seems to have been injured beyond cure. "The sovrinst thing in life is spermaciti for an inward bruise," he should have tried that

This saloon skirmish introduced a general system of rowing and gorilla warfare on the part of Old Whit, with which the civilization of Dallas was tempered or tampered with for months. Whitley had a son, and he wanted his son to whip Glaze. With all the calculation and deliberation with which a man fights his game cock or his game dog, Old Whit wanted to fight his game son against Glaze. But Glaze couldn't be induced to accept the challenge, and could not be made to believe he was a bull dog at all. Glaze cool y said that he could whip young Whitley, but he wasn't going to. No woman could have been more obstinate.

The time came when Old Whit was about to move his personal presence to Salem. Wanting to pay off old scores before he left the familiar scenes of Dallas, he remembered his debt to Glaze. Sathrday afternoon one day last fall, he went down to where his son was working a threshing machine, and being in the business, he thought he might as well thresh Glaze and so wind up the score. "Son," said he, "you must come up to town this evening, for we have got that little account to set le before I go away."

They went too work coolly to settle the account, and took so many people into their confidence that three different men came in and told Glaze that they were coming to murder him. Glaze was still on the defensive, and was endeavoring to clear the saloon and close the doors when old Whitley his son, and a nice young man named Dice, entered and took possession. Old Whitley shook hands with McCann and sat down on a lager beer keg to rest, but he didn't like the position, so he manouvered to outflank Glaze, and having got in position to suit him, he fired suddenly, but Glaze had a pistol handy and he fired almost as soon. Young Whitley had a hatchet and tried to chop down Glaze with his little hatchet, and did blaze his arm a little. Mr Dice opened fire on Mr McCann, and McCann fired a volley to be in the fashion. The attacking party withdrew, and nobody was hurt to speak of. Not satisfied yet, young Whitley ran and got a double barrelled shotgun, almost instantly, and fired through the front screen, at young Glaze, then entered the door to bag his game when, lo and behold young Glaze, not being hit, and having one shot left in his revolver, fired it and killed young White.

One of the curiosities of the Vienna exhibition will be a watch made entirely of rock crystal. Many years since a workman in a French manufactory decided to make a watch every part of which, the mainspring alone excepted, should be of rock crystal, and after thirty years' labor accomplished the task. All the pieces of the watch are fastened by rock crystal screws and the escapement is most intricate. His widow would never part with it, but when she died the treasure fell into the hands of a French watchmaker who intends to exhibit it as a sample of French workmanship, pricing it at two thousand dollars.

A worthy old lady offers the following advice to girls: "Whenever a follow pops the question, don't blush and stare at your foot. Just throw your arms around his neck, look him full in the face and commence talking about the furniture."

on

Saturday Evening, April 19, 1873,

At 8 o'clock.

Subject—The Two Books by the same Great Author.

Rev Mr Bowers comes to us from the East with a reputation second to none on the Pacific coast. Learned, eloquent and witty, he cannot fail to highly entertain an audience on a subject so extensive in research and theory. This lecture will be scientific in its character, appealing to Geology, Astronomy, Chemistry, etc., but prepared for the masses. It is a refutation of many absurd theories, by which skeptics have sought to invalidate the chronology of Moses. Between the claims of true Science and Revelation there will be shown to be perfect accord. This lecture drew the largest house in Salem of the whole course of lectures delivered in Reed's Opera House, and received the highest encomiums from the press and people. No one should fail to hear it, if possible to attend.

Admission, 50 cents; Reserved Seats, 75 cents. Reserved seats can be secured at the Bookstore of G H Steel & Co., on Saturday. a16d1d

FRIDAY MORNING, APRIL 18, 1873.

CITY.

THE FUNERAL OF GENERAL CANBY.—The Committee appointed by the Common Council to make arrangements on behalf of the citizens of Portland for the proper observance of the obsequies of the late General E. R. S. Canby, respectfully request that the citizens close their places of business from 11 A. M. to 5 P. M. to-day, as a mark of respect to the memory of the deceased; and that they assemble on Fourth street, in front of the Court House, at 12 M., and join the funeral cortege at that place.

PORTLAND, April 18, 1873.

PHILIP WASSERMAN, Mayor.
W. LAIR HILL,
J. B. CONGLE,
A. B. HALLOCK,
Committee.

CIRCUIT COURT PROCEEDINGS.—Mr Geo. Merrill, the County Clerk for Columbia County, has kindly furnished us with the following proceedings of the Circuit Court at St. Helens for the April term:

State vs Benjamin Noer et al; dismissed.

State vs John W. Howell; default.

B. F. Hiltner vs Lishan, for plaintiff by jury.

Eversole vs Eversole, divorce tried and submitted to the Court.

John Campbell vs F. A. Davis, jury trial, verdict for plaintiff about $400.

M. Titus vs B. Grounds; settled by the parties.

S. A. Mills vs E. R. Poppleton, dismissed at plaintiff's cost; motion by plaintiff's attorney.

Wm. H. Martin vs C. H. Williams et al, motion for default; leave granted to amend sheriff's return; foreclosure suit.

Capital Lumbering Company vs D. J. Yeargain et al; suit to foreclose mortgage; default granted.

R. J. Ladd vs Louis Flager et al; Ruth M. Bonser substituted as defendant and Flager and Davis dismissed; trial changed to Multnomah county by stipulation.

State of Oregon vs John Blanchard; tried and found guilty of simple assault; sentence to-morrow morning.

State of Oregon vs E. S. Bryant; pleads not guilty; trial pending; jury not yet empanelled.

INGRESS AND EGRESS.—As the remains of Gen. Canby will lie in state at the Washington Guard Armory from 12 M. to 4 P. M. to-day, and as they will probably be visited by several thousand persons during the course of the afternoon, we are requested to make the following statement: Guards will be stationed during the time the body lies in state at the corners of Stark and First, and also Second streets, on the south side. The doors of the Armory will be opened a little after 12 o'clock to all who may desire to take a farewell look at the departed soldier. It must be borne in mind that the entrance to the Armory will be on Second street. All who attempt to gain entrance from any other direction, will be promptly intercepted by the guards. After passing around the hall, the crowds can file out through the entrance and pass down to First street. This arrangement, if carried out, will avoid confusion or a jam, which would otherwise be certain to occur. Ladies and gentlemen passing into the building need not interfere with those moving in an opposite direction.

DELAY INCURRED.—When the special train sent to Roseburg on Wednesday for the remains of Gen. Canby was on the way to that point, a slight accident occurred which did no greater damage than to compel a change of locomotives and occasion some little delay. On the way southward, the train stopped for a few minutes at a station to "wood up." A cow, attracted by curiosity or impelled by some unaccountable instinct, came smelling about the locomotive. Unnoticed by either the engineer or fireman, one of the animal's horns violently struck a stop cock connected with the water tank to the tender and broke the end of the pipe short off. Before the last was discovered, most of the water had run out. Not having the time to repair even this slight damage, the engineer was obliged to run the locomotive to the nearest station and take another. The accident caused but little delay.

FULL OF FREIGHT.—The steamship Company's dock presented yesterday a more animated appearance than it has for many months. Huge quantities of freight just discharged from the Ajax, was scattered along the wharf, thrown in irregular, confused piles. Heaps of all kinds of merchandise was pouring in on trucks and drays awaiting the first opportunity to be placed on board the California, which will sail this evening for Sitka and way ports. The drays and vehicles of different kinds blocked up every available avenue of egress and ingress, creating a perfect jam, while to add to the general din and uproar of the scene, the mingled shouts and orders from freight clerks, draymen and the officers of the vessels, were heard on all sides. The famous scene of Babel seemed re-enacted on a small scale.

STILL THEY COME.—As spring opens, stock-raisers throughout the valley are sending cattle to the extensive grazing regions east of the mountains. Almost every day the Dalles boat carries away more or less stock. Last evening a drove of cattle—principally yearlings—from the upper portions of the valley, arrived in this city, and were carried away on the Emma Hayward this morning. There were about 270 head; destination of these cattle, a point about 25 miles east of the Dalles.

BOND FILED.—Smith Bros., who were awarded the contract by the County Court for the building of an iron fence around the Court House block, filed their bond yesterday in the Clerk's office. The bond is for the strict and faithful performance of the conditions of the contract: to build, construct and put up the fence in accordance with the plans and specifications. The bond is fixed at $9,150, and Mr. E. J. Northrop is the surety.

FUNERAL SERVICES.—The funeral services of the late Brig. Gen. Ed. R. S. Canby will be held this morning at his widow's residence, corner of Main and Seventh streets, at 11 o'clock. Rev. Geo. W. Izer, of the Taylor Street M. E Church, Rev. Dr. A. L. Lindsley, of the First Presbyterian Church, and Rev. T. L. Eliot, of the Unitarian Church, are the ministers appointed to conduct the burial services.

BOTTOM COPPERED.—The bark Whistler now lies partially beached at Astoria, having a portion of her bottom coppered, the barnacles removed and some other repairs made. Her ballast, consisting of about 130 tons of sand and rock, has been discharged. When the repairs are completed, the Whistler will proceed to Coquille and load with lumber for some South American port.

CUTTING GOVERNMENT TIMBER.—At the present term of the District Court, now in session at Vancouver, a man named Cooper was indicted for cutting timber on Government land below Cathlamet. Marshal E. S. Kearney deputized a man to proceed to that point and arrest Cooper. The deputy went down yesterday and arrested him. He is now at Vancouver and will be tried in a few days.

ADJOURNED MEETING.—An adjourned meeting was held at the County Court room by the Mexican Veterans, yesterday afternoon. The object of the meeting was to make arrangements for attending the funeral of the late General Canby. After making arrangements to attend the funeral in a body, the Veterans adjourned until this afternoon.

FOR RE-SHIPMENT.—The bark Melancthon is receiving a cargo of wheat at Flanders' wharf for San Francisco. From that point it will probably be reshipped to Europe. The bark will be in readiness to go down the river in a few days. At one of the points down the Columbia, the Melancthon will receive on board a deck load of lumber.

IN ATTENDANCE.—During the term of Circuit Court in session at St. Helens, the following attorneys were in attendance: M F. Mulkey, R. R. Bybee, Thos. McBride, Judge Lancaster, J. C. Moreland, E. Sullivan, Wm. D. Gilbert, Judge E. D. Shattuck, R. H. Hassell, Geo. H. Durham, District Attorney, and O. P. Mason.

THE LECTURE.—To-morrow evening Rev. Stephen Bowers, A. M., of Salem, will deliver his interesting lecture on "The two Books of the same Great Author," in Masonic Hall. The entire proceeds of this lecture will be appropriated toward the liquidation of the Empire City church.

ON THE BERTH.—The bark Rival is now on the berth at San Francisco loading for this port. She is receiving an assorted cargo, and will have quick dispatch for Portland.

Remember the Noon Day Prayer Meetings at the rooms of the Y. M. C. A., corner of Stark and First street, from 12½ to 1 o'clock.

The decorations of the cathedral on Holy Thursday and on Easter day were the theme of much observation and praise.

At the meeting held last Sunday afternoon, to make preliminary arrangements for a May Festival in aid of the Catholic Library and Christian Doctrine Society, a good attendance was secured and much interest manifested. The meeting was presided over by Mr D J. Malarkey, and Mr. John Gearin acted as Secretary. A Committee of Arrangements was appointed, also a Committee for the sale of tickets. The General Committee will meet again on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, April 27th.

On Easter Sunday, from early morn, at every Mass, the church was filled with devout worshippers. But it was literally packed at the Grand Pontifical Mass, celebrated by Archbishop Blanchet, who was assisted in the performance of this Sacrifice by Very Rev J. F. Fierens, V. G., as Assistant Priest, and Rev. Fathers Glorieux and Verhaag as Deacon and Sub-Deacon respectively. The sermon was preached by Father Glorieux, the subject being the "Glorious Resurrection of our Lord." At the conclusion of the solemn services, the Most Rev. Celebrant imparted the Papal Benediction to the assembled multitude.

MEETING AT ASTORIA.

THE CITIZENS OF ASTORIA HOLD A PUBLIC MEETING—PASS RESOLUTIONS, ETC.

At an improvised meeting of a portion of our citizens, held at the Occidental Hotel on the evening of the 11th inst., Hon. A. Hinman was called to the Chair, and W. W. Parker appointed Secretary.

The object of the meeting as stated, was to take some action relative to the treacherous murder of General Canby and his associates, by the Modoc Indians. The hour being late, and many of our citizens not having read the news in the papers, it was voted to adjourn to the evening of the 16th, at 8 o'clock, at the Court House, to receive the report of the Committee on Resolutions, expressive of the sense of our community on the Modoc war and its results.

On Wednesday evening, at the appointed hour, the meeting was called to order, the Chairman being absent, and Hon. Joseph Jeffers appointed Chairman pro tem.

About half as many persons were present as at the previous evening's meeting, and the committee, consisting of W. W. Parker, R. R. Speddon and H. S. Aiken, after the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, presented the following preamble and resolutions as the sense of the community:

WHEREAS, We have learned with deep regret of the treacherous and brutal murder of General E. R. S. Canby, Rev Dr Eleazar Thomas, Lieut. Sherwood, and the probable mortal wounding of Hon. A. B Meacham, by Modoc savages, whom the Government, by a mistaken policy, was endeavoring to protect from the punishment due them for their inhuman butchery of unprotected settlers and citizens, therefore be it

Resolved, That we cannot too strongly condemn the action of those citizens of Oregon and California, who have by a persistent misrepresentation of facts brought about these terrible results.

Resolved, That we tender to the bereaved families of the victims of these criminal misrepresentations our heartfelt condolence in this their hour of affliction, with the assurance that we most sensibly feel that the loss is not theirs alone, but that the sorrow falls heavily upon the whole country.

Resolved, That the newspapers of Oregon be requested to publish the proceedings of this meeting.

After considerable discussion,—some thinking Secretary Delano and the Administration should be censured, and Governor Grover praised; some thinking the ministers, church people, etc., of the Eastern States had deceived and forced upon the President his Quaker peace policy; some thinking it not proper, as the resolutions do, to censure the very men whom the Modocs killed and attempted to kill, and then go on and express sympathy for their bereaved families; and some thinking it best to express our heartfelt sympathy for the afflicted, and not censure or judge too severely, the actors in the peace commission affair (as probably they were intelligent and honest citizens, and knew better what to do on the ground than we do this far off), the resolutions were finally adopted, one at a time.

The meeting then adjourned.

W. W. PARKER, Secretary.

Reflection in a Dentist's Chair.

Whether these may be appropriately termed "Happy Thoughts" is questionable, but they will suggest the experience of every luckless patient who "has been there."

Is it perfectly certain that he has the right tooth in hand?

Didn't he twitch at the old filling with a nervous desire to convince me that my last dentist was little better than a quack?

Isn't there a slight danger that in a fit of absent-mindedness he'll bore clean thro' the tooth?

Suppose his chisel were to slip, where would it go? Where would it go?

What proportion of carbonic acid thrown off by his lungs am I inhaling, with the already vitiated atmosphere of this close room?

In short, am I not acting as a sort of sluice way for some of the waste of his dominion body?

How long will this work last?

Will he adhere strictly to the scale of prices hung in plain sight on the wall? If so, under which head does this job come, large or extra large?

In whose mouth did he operate that file last?

Isn't he paving the way for a future job by filing away such quantities of enamel?

Suppose he should strike the nerve?

Is it possible that that girl in the window across the street can see me with the same distinctness that I do her; and, if she were communicative, wouldn't she injure my prospects?

Will enough of the corner of my mouth be filed away to result in permanent enlargement?

Will it be red or blistered enough to prevent my fully enjoying my engagement for the opera to-night?

How long before I'll have to get a false set of teeth?

Happy thought—Will I then be able to sing falsetto?

How many die every day with splendid teeth!

After this protracted operation, will it be any consolation to remember that, with princes, I eat on gold?

Did my particular young lady friend ever speak of having her teeth plugged, or of suffering from the jawache?

Suppose that water in his syringe has just been taken from the ice-pitcher.

How many years before the process of grafting sound teeth will become a perfect success?

If they could do it in the days of the Ptolemies, why don't they do it now?

If you want the woven wire bed, parlor and bedroom suits, the best spring and pure hair mattresses, go to Hurgren & Shindler.

A number of dry goods boxes emptied of their contents led the public to believe that something new had just been opened, and upon closer inspection it was found that the boxes were addressed to J. O'Neil & Co., 95 First street, who had but a few moments before piled up in their store an extensive and varied stock of clothing, gentlemen's furnishing goods, and cloths of fine texture for the manufacture of spring styles in gentlemen's and boys' clothing.

The public mind has been somewhat agitated with the Modoc war, an occasional marine or railway disaster, and the dull times, and the prospect of buying clothing at a figure not large enough to clean a man to the bedrock. The place has been found where you can buy men and boys' clothing, or gentlemen's furnishing goods, at the very lowest prices. It is at Beck & Waldman's, corner of Front and Washington street, where a full assortment of men and boys' clothing, in the latest styles, can be selected from.

The Sewerage Problem—No. 5.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The impression given by the Bulletin, that "Third Ward" is governed by impure personal motives in opposing the proposed plan of city drainage, is incorrect. None but kind and respectful feelings for the gentleman who proposes this plan has ever been entertained by me. His ability as a competent civil engineer has never been questioned. His office work displays that eminent skill that few can equal. His selection of Sixth street for the base of a system of under-ground drainage was certainly both wise and economical. And had the same wisdom been exercised in extending the sewer on Sixth street to Lincoln street, no complaint of the drainage plan would have been heard from "Third Ward." But in departing from this plan and substituting another for the southern district, he assumed a theory radically unsound, and subjected it to criticism. Competent civil engineers, equal to this gentleman in ability, and far more familiar with the situation, do not approve of his theory as applicable to the southern district of this city.

The thrice repeated advice to read the report has been heeded. The report has not only been carefully read, but the topography of the area affected, its peculiar condition, and situation, in connection with the causes, have all been studied with reference to the application of the remedy proposed in this report. It is apparent to every observer that no part of the city is suffering more for want of some speedy remedy for existing evils than the southern part, and "Third Ward," in common with all others in this district, instead of wishing to retard an improvement, desires to see some speedy, thorough, equitable economical method adopted that will relieve us of the present annoying and expensive conditions of things.

Will Mr. Habersham's plan of constructing a brick sewer 3,400 feet long on Clay street from Ninth to the river relieve us, or remedy the difficulty? We think not. For we would then be forced into that tedious and complicated series of contributing sewers, pipes and gutters necessary to carry the rain water north to Clay street. We have not forgotten the fact that we have been already taxed heavily in grading our streets and building gutters to force the rain water easterly to the river.

To change this whole system will require time and money. The result of Mr. Habersham's theory is, that we will be compelled to endure the present evils or change our whole system of water flow, which will necessitate a large expense on nearly every street in this part of the city.

In all street improvements chargeable to the property adjacent or benefited by it, the property owners have the right of remonstrance. Therefore it is always easier to make one improvement than two or more; and where a single improvement will accomplish the same results that a series scattered over considerable area would, it seems the part of wisdom to adopt the single improvement.

Fully believing that the extension of the Sixth street sewer to Lincoln street would be acceptable to our people, and that it would at once accomplish the much desired object—entertaining the views that have, in substance, been fully expressed in former communications—and not supposing for a moment that any vested rights were being trespassed upon, or that the ire of the Bulletin or any one else would be aroused, I have offered these suggestions. I still belive them to be correct.

It may seem captious to some minds, to criticise any plan for a proposed public improvement, because it might reflect upon the person holding a public position that presented the plan; but in the simplicity of an unsuspecting nature that intended no wrong to any one, the theory was assumed, that all public positions were held in trust for the benefit of the people; and not that because a person happened to get into such position, he held an absolute fee simple power over it. Hence the criticism.

The Bulletin says this is "our last" to "Third Ward." It would be unkind to take advantage of, or to cause regret, for that conclusion. It shall not be done.

But it is somewhat difficult to comprehend the connection suggested by the Bulletin that the city sewerage question has with the coming city election, unless it is a proper subject to be submitted to the electors of the city for their approval or rejection, instead of an inconsiderate adoption by the Common Council. Will the Bulletin favor this?

As for the trick anticipated by the "Third Ward Fox," to inveigle the Bulletin's "honest watch dogs" away from the control of their master, no fears need be apprehended in that matter, for a freedom-loving fox has no affinity whatever for servile, labelled, brass-collared watch dogs.

Never Too Late to Mend.

When the stomach is in a state of chronic rebellion against every kind of food, and the attending physician, with solemn and portentous gravity, declares that such cases of confirmed dyspepsia defy all remedies, do not put faith in his ipse dixit. Indigestion of this obstinate character may be incurable by his prescriptions, but it is not therefore an irremovable fixture in the system. The fact is that the great vegetable invigorant and corrective, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, is radically curing cases of this seemingly desperate nature every day. Indeed, it is in these malignant phases of dyspepsia which no ordinary medicine can control, that its remedial properties are most wonderfully manifested. We say to the long-suffering martyr, whose stomach is a source of perpetual torment to him, that by the persistent and daily use of this glorious tonic, he can not only restore the digestive organs to their full vigor, but can keep them in good working order through life. If there is constipation, the gentle aperient operation of the Bitters will remove all obstructions, and keep the bowels in a regular and healthy condition. The grand characteristic of this vitalizing and purifying vegetable preparation is that it acts beneficially upon every organ, controlling the liver, reinforcing the nerves, toning the coats of the stomach, promoting a healthy habit of body, relieving the blood of all impurities, clearing the brain and reviving the spirits.

PLANTATION BITTERS!
S. T.—1860—X.
This wonderful vegetable restorative is the sheet-anchor of the feeble and debilitated. As a tonic and cordial for the aged and languid it has no equal among stomachics. As a remedy for the nervous weakness to which women are especially subject, it is superseding every other stimulant. In all climates, tropical, temperate or frigid, it acts as a specific in every species of disorder which undermines the bodily strength and breaks down the animal spirits.

MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT; FOR MAN AND BEAST.
Probably few articles have ever had so extensive Sale, while none have been more universally beneficial than the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT. Children, Adults, Horses and Domestic Animals, are always liable to accident, and it is safe to say, that no family can pass a single season without some kind of an emollient being necessary. It becomes a matter of importance then to secure the best.
Over three hundred livery stables in the city of New York alone are using the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT, in all of which it gives unusual satisfaction.
CAUTION.—The genuine is wrapped in a fine Steel Plate engraving with "G. W. Westbrook, Chemist," and "Trade Mark, MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT," engraved across the face of each wrapper. The whole bears the proprietor's private United States Revenue Stamp, and not a common stamp, as used by druggists.

THE ATLANTIC

The Wreck of the White Star Steamer on Meagher's Rock

DEATH IN THE ROCK, IN THE RIGGING AND THE SEA

A Graphic Picture of the Catastrophe!

[From the New York Herald.]

HALIFAX, N. S., April 3d, 1873.

The calamity upon the coast to the White Star steamer Atlantic continues to occasion profound sensation and sorrow. The survivors were billeted about among the public houses and made as comfortable as possible. At an early hour in the morning wagons loaded with coffins were seen proceeding to the vicinity of the wreck, at the same time rough coffin shaped boxes were being placed on board a schooner at the Cunard wharf as well as lumber and carpenters to make more of them on the passage and at the fatal scene.

THE FIRST INVESTIGATION—TIME MADE IN THE PASSAGE

A slight preliminary examination has been held as to the cause of the disaster, but nothing of consequence was elicited. There is no doubt, however, according to the statements of the officers and passengers, that the Atlantic was not properly coaled for the voyage at this season. Her passage was not tempestuous. She made 400 miles in the first three days. Gales were encountered on the 25th and 26th, which lowered her speed to 196 and 118, but on the 27th she made 244 miles; 28th, 189 miles; 30th, 215 miles; 31st, 264 miles, and on Monday, a calm day, but 169 miles. The ship had then passed Halifax, but, having on board only 130 tons of coal, was put back. It is evident that she was put to sea some five hundred tons of coal short. Captain Williams is reticent in regard to his reckoning; he had never been to Halifax before. It is certain, however, that he was twenty miles nearer land than he supposed, and his allowance for the westerly current could not have been correct. The sun and the stars showed eight, but the ship with the wind abeam and aft, was evidently too quick for the calculation.

THE FOUNDATION FOR THE CALAMITY

lies in insufficient coaling and a miscalculation, and, perhaps, some incompetency upon the part of the watch on deck, but Mr Metcalf has to settle that before a Higher Power, and more than five hundred souls are there to respond. As I have before stated, Captain Williams is silent upon the all important point as to his reckoning. All agree, however, that he was a hero in the supreme moment, and any one would believe it who could have heard his heartbroken, sobbing accents. "My God, if I could only have saved a woman or child, the memory of that girl clinging about my neck and beseeching me to save her will haunt me to my own grave." Captain Williams, nevertheless, was worthy of the name of his illustrious prototype of the Oneida. He stood by his ship until the last soul was saved, or till safety was rendered absolutely sure.

CARING FOR THE SURVIVORS

The survivors that reached the city last evening were taken in care by S. Cunard & Co., and made as comfortable as possible in the various public houses about the city. They were properly refitted with clothing, and were sent on their way westward at nine o clock in the evening, per steamer Falmouth, for Portland. As many of the saloon passengers as chose also went by the same vessel.

COFFINS FOR THE UNFORTUNATE DEAD

Captain Williams with the steam tug Henry Hoover, having in tow the steamer Amalur, started for the scene of the wreck with 150 coffins. Mr. Mackwald proceeded with the Captain. He will remain until all the bodies of the saloon passengers who were his companions may be recovered. He has ordered metallic coffins for the bodies of the saloon passengers, who are to be conveyed to the States.

AMONG THE DEAD—HEARTRENDING SIGHTS

The scene at Meagher's Island to-day was very sad. At six o'clock this evening bodies that had been recovered were laid in rows along the sloping ledge, and it required a strong nerve to walk among them and not succumb to tears. There were mothers and little children, strong men staring sightless, their eyes protruding and froth issuing from their mouths. Little children were there, bruised and bloody, but with that sweet expression which, strange as it may seem, usually comes of violent deaths. The body of Mr. Hewitt, of the firm of Best & Co., of New York, was recognized among the recovered.

GHOULS PILLAGING THE CORPSES.

It is very sad to say that the bodies were pillaged after they washed ashore and were then turned adrift again. An emigrant with thirty sovereigns sewed in his vest was found, and all of them cut out. The robber of the dead was apprehended by the magistrate.

A large trench is being dug, in which the bodies of the poor unclaimed will be put to rest.

The steamer is rapidly going to pieces, she is broken quite in two, and the wreckers are at work on her.

Capt Williams will return from the wreck in the morning, when a formal court of investigation will be held by the Board of Trade and Underwriters.

THE SCENE AT PROSPECT THURSDAY MORNING

The weather had been gusty all Wednesday afternoon, and towards eight o'clock at night became stormy, the wind blowing dead on shore, and, according to the local authorities, working woe to the wreck. When day dawned this morning the storm had lulled, and the waters of Prospect harbor were calm and smooth as glass. A boat was speedily engaged to convey the anxious news seekers first to the mill of death, and, secondly, to the spot where the broken and dismembered Atlantic lies. As the skiff shot round the points and passed among the numerous islets and rocky masses that stud the coast there were glimpses obtained of the wrecking fleet, comprising schooners and tugs beyond number. Row boats, manned by hardy fishermen, that sped full quick to the spot, where were already made fast more than one, whose equipment of grappling irons, drags and ropes told plainly the mission on which its crew was bent. The curiosity of your correspondent was now roused to the highest pitch, and every rock face, every grass slope, every earth terrace was scanned, in the hope of discovering the first traces of the dead harvest of the sea. A slow ascent of a deep declivity, marked by huge projecting granite masses, a glance at the distant breakers, seen from the top of the rock, then, on turning a vast block of stone, the visitor gasped for breath, as at his very feet, still, stark and cold, with glassy eyes opened out to widest extent and gazing up, lay in rows what not many hours before had been human beings.

APPEARANCE OF THE DEAD

A feeling deeper than reverential awe, a sensation as might be experienced by one standing on the threshold of death, chilled to the very marrow the bones of the looker on, and it was with slow step and half averted glance that the gleaner of news approached the solemn assembly. Then what a sight met the eye! There, on the brow of that rocky island, partly on the stone, partly on the grassy earth, wet with last night's rain and cut up by brown patches of moss, lay the aged and the young, the strong and the feeble, equalized at last by the blow that fell so suddenly on them. Ay! man, woman and child had been alike swallowed up by the greedy deep. Side by side lay they, some of whose faces bore the imprint of that peace so much spoken of, others were set resolutely, as if the last thought of the living creature had been duty, and others again revealed nothing of the final emotions that must have crowded the few last passing minutes that elapsed ere eternity opened up before them.

PICTURE OF THE CORPSES

The dead lay in all positions, too—half recumbent, stiffened by death, and icy cold, wildly agitated as if the struggle had been long and bitter, easy and natural, making one almost believe that no agony had been suffered by the departed, defensive, as if resisting the buffeting of the maddened waves on the horrid night on the bare cliffs. In all stages of dress, from a well to do emigrant with his clothes all on, evidencing his habits, to the weary sailor just relieved from his watch, who had turned in, clad in wet garments, women whose dresses had been torn to rags by the action of the breakers, children as they might have been in their beds—but one and all carefully and reverentially covered while mutilations disfigured the form, for, alas! the work of rescue needs a bold and unscrupulous hand and the floating body must be gaffed as it washes by, and, no matter where the sharp hook strikes, whether on face, neck or body, it cuts and tears frightfully. Some corpses had been so terribly lacerated that sail cloth had been used to cover up the features and limbs which love itself could no longer recognize. Hands, arms, feet and legs that were bare were seen around and all were bleached and shrunken horribly.

[illegible] AFTER LIFE

Faces were discolored and blotched and, green, with all manner of hideous colors and, again, there were the fair and rosy as in life. Gazing upon some of these forms one would have sworn they slept, and so strong was the illusion that in stepping by them the step was light for fear of waking those who never will wake until the sound of the "last trump."

In this awful array of one hundred and ten bodies—all that were discovered up to twelve o'clock—two faces struck the beholder with undisguised horror—one, that of a man, whose outstretched arms lent additional force to the wild expression of the wildly distended eyes. These glared so intensely that their fixed look of despair was a force unequalled by any save that of a female body, and then, indeed, was the agony of death met angrily, fiercely, furiously, depicted with startling vividness on rigid lineaments and firmset features.

POSITION OF THE WRECK

Leaving this grievous sight and taking boat once more, the visitor was landed on the narrow neck of Marr's Island, and traversing rapidly came full in sight of the wreck itself, nearly covered by the breaking seas that washed constantly over it. On Golden Rule Rock itself, a portion of the bows of the ill fated steamer still showed above the surf, and directly in front of the spectator the masts projected from that portion of the hull which has apparently slid back from the rock.

THE DEBRIS ON THE ROCK

At Golden Rule Rock, on which the ship struck, boats innumerable were cruising around the fallen monster, not daring, however, to approach too closely, for fear of the rush of the waters. The shore was thickly strewn with debris—planks, masts, beams, yards, staves, boxes, coops, broken boats, oars, ropes, skylight frames and all the strange objects cast up from the Man of the Ocean. The rock was crowded by men anxious to secure a share of the huge quantity of lumber that was being continually washed up. United with Swedish and Danish letters were young fruit saplings, defaced photographs, iron bolts and fragments of books in different languages. But the sea ran too high to permit the employment of divers or the approach to the sunken hull, and the various crafts busied themselves scouring the heaving main in search of bodies and floating cargo. As soon as the weather moderates steps will be taken to save what can be saved of the cargo.

BODIES DISCOVERED UP TO FOUR O'CLOCK

Up to four o clock this afternoon about 180 bodies had been recovered.

THE CREW MUTINOUS AND ROB THE DEAD

The officers who were saved went back to the wreck to day. Stories of the dead having been plundered and abused are rife, and are much exaggerated, but there is no doubt that some of the crew, who were a bad lot, robbed all they could, but the presence of the fishermen prevented their doing so to any great extent. Some of the crew were insubordinate beyond the control of the officers during the voyage.

Magistrates are in charge of affairs at Prospect, and the most perfect order prevails.

The steamer Falmouth sailed to-night for Portland, taking 304 of the passengers from the Atlantic.

The shipwreck was a terrible sight. Hundreds perished with cold. The passengers and crew acted nobly. It was for within a few moments after we struck the ship careened and threw those on the decks into the sea, and those only were saved who jumped quickly into the rigging. One or two women from the steerage who were in the rigging perished with cold. Many of those saved are suffering with cuts and bruises, but are being properly cared for. If it was not for who came to our rescue, every soul would have been lost, for after we had struggled and made the rocks and afterwards the main land, we surely would have perished with cold but for their houses that sheltered us. Their wives and daughters found us plenty of blankets and warm clothes, and furnished us with food and drink. The most that we regret is that it was impossible to save a woman. I will be happy to furnish information to friends and relatives.

F. D. MARCWALD,
Cabin Passenger.

STATEMENT OF QUARTERMASTER THOMAS

Robert Thomas, the quartermaster, says: "At two o'clock I went upon the bridge with the second officer, Mr. Metcalf, and told him not to stand into the land so, as the ship had run her distance to make the Sambro Light from my calculations. He told me that I was neither captain nor mate. I then went to the fourth officer (Brown), and asked him if I should go on the main yards, as he would not see land until he struck on it. He told me that it was no use for me to go up. I then relieved the man at the wheel, and at 2 o'clock the second officer told the captain, who was reposing in the chart room, that the weather was getting thick. The second officer went outside of the chart room. The man on the lookout called out,

"ICE AHEAD!"

They were among the ice, and shortly after the ship struck. The time was fifteen minutes after three. I put the helm hard starboard and reversed the engines full speed astern. I left the wheel house and went to the after wheel house and got the axes out and distributed them, for the purpose of cutting away the gear about the boats. A little boy and his mother, named Munney, both steerage passengers, with her brother, Alfred Munney, all from London were lost. She called to me after she came out of the after steerage and said to me, "Robert, where are you?" I said, "I am here." She said, "Save me!" I took the mother and child on the saloon deck and told her to stay there until I could get the boats clear to put her and the boy into. The ship suddenly listed over and they lost their hold on the rail and were swept overboard and sunk to rise no more. I think they have some friends or relations at Yonkers, Westchester county, N. Y., as I received an address to the above effect the night before. William Purdy, quartermaster, was the first who attempted to swim ashore, but when going he said, "Goodby, Thomas, will you come with me?" I replied that I wanted to save the boy and his mother. Then I saw that the boy and mother were swept away. I swam on shore, and when I landed on the rock a passenger called out, "Save me," which I did. I traversed from rock to rock, falling sometimes from exhaustion, with this man with me, until I found a place which the fishermen have to lookout and signalize boats. I then called out for help. Two old men and a boy came to our assistance, and I went to the house with them and procured a line, and then retraced my steps to the beach, where I saw a lot of passengers and crew upon the rock. Speakman, the quartermaster, swam towards me with a line from the rock, and I hove my line and caught him and pulled him ashore. As soon as I had done so, we hauled in the line which he had from the rock and made fast the end of my line to it, so as to make it stronger. As soon as I got the line made fast, I told those who were on the rock to come on it here one by one, as I would save them.

THE SIGNAL FORT,

THE FIRST MAN SAVED

in this way I do not know, but the second one was Mr Brady the third officer. I saved in this manner about seventy, as near as I can remember. In some instances, as the line was some distance overhead and the person is too exhausted, I had to reach down and pull them up. Some I had to go into the water, which was out of my depth, for, with a line around my waist. In those cases the two old men would drag me and the man I rescued ashore. I remained there from four o'clock to nine, when I fell down through exhaustion. One of the stewards and somebody else, came and relieved me, and I was carried away to a house where I was kindly cared for. As soon as I recovered sufficient strength, I was conveyed in a boat to the mainland, and went to Mr Ryan's, the magistrate, where I was kindly treated and attended to as I had the cramp. The Chief Steward and another man, who threw his arms around the steward's neck when coming ashore on the rope, were drowned at my feet. The reason that I could not render assistance in this case was that the two old men went away with a man that I had rescued, as they feared he would perish, therefore there was no one present to haul me ashore if I had jumped off the rocks after them."

QUARTERMASTER RAYLANCE'S STATEMENT.

Quartermaster Charles Raylance says: About twenty minutes past three o clock I hove the log, and the ship at that time was going at the rate of twelve knots per hour. I went into the aft wheel house and was looking, through one of the windows, when I fancied I saw breakers on the starboard side. I then ran forward to the lookout man on the bridge, and I asked him if he did not think there were breakers on the starboard side. He reported to the second officer, who telegraphed to the engine room to reverse the engines full speed astern. We both then jumped off the bridge together on the deck. Then he gave me orders to call all hands on deck. I ran forward and burst the quartermasters' room open with my foot, and all of them, three in number, got out through the panel of the door. Then I and one of them went aft and got out the rockets and fired about eight, when the rocket box rolled away from us. The Captain gave orders to get the boats clear and save the passengers. I and the Captain went to No. 3 boat and were getting her clear when he asked me if the plugs were in her. I told him they were not. As the passengers were huddled together in the bottom of the boat, crying, I COULD NOT GET THE PLUGS IN.

The Captain then passed the order around for every one to look after himself. I, with the Captain and a passenger, got into the main rigging and stopped there. The ship had previously keeled over, and I heard the Captain ask if any quartermasters were in the rigging. I answered yes, here is one. I then went up aloft by the maintopmast rigging, as the Captain gave me orders to unreeve the signal halyards to heave ashore. When I got up aloft the maintopsail brace was carried away, and I had to come down again. At that time the lines were ashore, and I assisted the Captain in getting to the forward rigging. The Captain and I cut the fore-brace and passed it to Mr. Brown, fourth officer, who sent it on and passed it ashore by one of the other lines. By this time passengers were and the Captain gave orders for the passengers to jump and do the best they could for themselves. Then I heard Quartermaster Thomas sing out, "Stay where you are, a boat is coming to your assistance." Therefore orders were given for the passengers and crew to stay where they were. When the boat did come, the sea running high, the boat could not render us any assistance, and the Captain therefore told the passengers to get ashore by the line, which they did. During this time two large boats were being launched, which went to the rock, and were taking passengers off the rock to the island. The Captain seeing this, told the boats' crews that those in the rigging were in the most imminent danger, more so than those on the rock, and to come and take them off first, and he offered them £500 for every boat load they would rescue. The boats then came to the ship and took the passengers from the rigging first. I then went myself, and one of the sailors carried me, as I could not walk myself, to one of the houses, where I was treated well.

THE ONLY SURVIVING YOUTH.

The only youth saved from the wreck makes the following statement:

My name is John Hinley. I am about twelve years of age. I got on board the Atlantic at Liverpool, with my mother, father and young brother. We all belonged to Ashton, Lancashire. The first thing worth mentioning that he knew of was that he was asleep in his berth when a great noise awakened him, although he did not hear any voices. There seemed to be a great rush, and he stumbled out of bed and into the crowd. The greater portion passed him, but he saw six men crowding into a top berth in the upper steerage, and he followed them. One of the men broke through a window and got out, and the boy did the same, one kind hearted individual pushing him through before he had made the egress himself. Once outside, he

HELD BY THE ROPES

Until himself and his companions were rescued by the life boat. What became of his parents and brother he did not know, but it is certain they were drowned. The family were on their way to New York at the invitation of two married daughters settled there.

INCIDENTS OF THE WRECK.

One man had just secured a flour barrel on deck when he was washed overboard, but not before he had obtained a hold grasping either end, the bottom being out. The barrel, from its build, would be precipitated by the sea some distance above the waves and then fall back. One more than usually heavy sea sent barrel and man at least six feet high. He had lost his hold before he came down, falling in the trough of the sea, but though on top of a wave, which rose a little further on, the barrel rode buoyantly but the man did not come to light.

THE WOMEN AND CHILDREN

"We saw very little of the women and children," says another informant, "everything happened so quick that before even those who were strongest had got out of the choked passageway the females were either so bewildered or the water had so impeded their progress that very few came on deck. Those that did were swept away before they could fasten themselves or be secured by others."

A LAST LOVING EMBRACE.

"I saw one woman," said he, "in the water with three children just as they were washed overboard—two in her arms (one infant) and the other with its arms about her neck. They went down almost instantly."

The captain said to the reporter this evening, "To think that, while hundreds of men were saved, every woman should have perished. It's terrible. If I had been able to save even one woman I could bear the disaster, but, to lose all, it's terrible! terrible! He seemed to fully realize that the world would hold him to a strict account for the disaster, and that, whether he was blameless or culpable, he would be by many held responsible.

Captain Williams is a stout-built Englishman, about forty-five years of age, who has followed the sea for many years. He was for a long time a captain in the Guion line. For upwards of a year he has been in the White Star service—first as chief officer of the Celtic, and, latterly, for two voyages, Captain of the Atlantic. He met with an accident a short time ago which disabled him to a certain extent, and recently he has been compelled to use a stick and abstain from great exertion. Notwithstanding this, however, he so conducted himself at the trying time as to win the highest commendations from the passengers.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

Financial.

THURSDAY EVENING, April 17, 1873

Gold in New York to-day, 119.

Portland Legal Tender rates, 85½ buying, 84½ selling.

Gold bars are quotable at 800 fine.

Wheat in Liverpool—Average Calif rnia, 11s 5d@11s 8d; club 11s 9d@12s.

It now seems pretty generally admitted that we are to have the [illegible] of the gold market so long as the entire financial system of the country can be influenced by the manipulations in Wall street. This class of [illegible] are so very bitterly denounced by commercial writers in the East without regard to political faith, for the last act of those, the [illegible] of which was the sudden [illegible] of gold to 119 at which it seems at last accounts to be still standing. We copy a few of the comments of the New York papers on the rise. The Mercantile Journal says:

There is nothing in the season of the year or in the natural course of trade to justify even an approach to this state of things. It is only that speculators have [illegible] control of the market as they are so readily able to do under existing systems and are continuing to manipulate it for their own benefit. They have simply given the screw a few extra turns the past week, as they will do again when it suits their purpose, and the wholesale mercantile interests of the country must suffer. The only sure and permanent remedy is a system which they cannot [illegible].

Respecting the "lock up" of Monday, the Herald says: The long prevalent scarcity in the money market culminated to-day in a spasm of stringency which will doubtless form a conspicuous incident in the history of Wall street. Borrowers of money paid for the use overnight at the rate of 1-4 per cent per annum. This was an exceptional or rare rate. It was paid for $1,000,000 by a very prominent banking house in Nassau street, and for numbers of lots of one hundred thousand dollars down to five thousand dollars the same rate being paid, but as late as ten minutes to 4 o'clock, to which time, of course, a number of bank accounts had to remain open.

The Tribune of the same date says:

"The money market has been unwontedly active and stringent with the utmost excitement and activity prevailing from the opening to the close. A few call loans were done at a sixteenth and interest at the start, but rates rapidly hardened, and before the usual money crowd had dispersed exceptional transactions were made as high as one per cent per diem or 365 per cent per annum. These were isolated cases, however; but ¼ and ⅛ of one per cent were by no means uncommon, and the average rate of the afternoon may be set down at not under ½ per cent commission. Money was bought and sold on the street, to-day, in much the same manner as vegetables are hawked about by licensed vendors, and we can scarcely remember the time when this has been carried to such an extent as to-day."

The Post says:

"The money market has been exceedingly stringent, with ½ of one per cent per day in addition to legal interest as the top rate and money can be borrowed at this rate on approved collateral, although loans at the opening were made as low as ⅛ per day. If this is kept up, failures are expected. Wall street people, however, think the Treasury will issue more legal tenders."

"Stocks are feverish. United States bonds are lower, holders being forced to sell to get money."

Foreign exchange is demoralized, and foreign trade operations are temporarily suspended, merchants complaining bitterly against the Wall street speculators. These periodical disturbances in Wall street seriously injure the business of the entire country and merchants think that the public finances should be managed so as to make them impossible.

The Gold market was also a chief point of attack in this speculative raid. The Sun thus sets forth the transactions in the Gold Room on Monday:

"Toward noon it was announced that the programme of Secretary Richardson for April embraced the sale of six millions of gold and the purchase of one million of bonds. This announcement fell like a clap of thunder upon the speculators, and created bitter disappointment. Many of the leading importers and foreign merchants, who had need of coin for their European business, had procrastinated their preparations for the demands to be made upon them until yesterday, waiting for the Treasurer's announcement. They confidently expected to purchase at a lower rate. In this they received and without their hoist.

"At 1 P. M. the premium was 117¼, and it is said that a few sales were made as high even as 118½. This is the highest point reached since the German war. A number of brokers, who are agents for Jay Gould, purchased heavily. This tended to accelerate the demand, an increased the excitement. The Gold Room resembled pandemonium. Men shouted until they were hoarse, and elbowed each other until their sides were sore. The uproar in the room resembled some of the excitements at the time of the Southern rebellion."

San Francisco Wheat Market

As it is in contemplation to ship a considerable portion of our remaining surplus wheat, we give the substance of our latest advices by mail from the first concerning the condition of the market. Business is less urgent now than at any period for nine months previously. The total exports for the first nine months of the current harvest year aggregate (flour included) 9,296,800 centals, of the value of $16 674 468. Total receipts for the same period, 9,570,600 centals. Adding flour reduced to Wheat, and the aggregate of the two is 10,045 000 centals Wheat. Oregon receipts for the same period approximate 69,600 bbls Flour and 11,200 centals Wheat, making a grand aggregate of Wheat handled there the last nine months 10,286,000 centals, being a large excess over any previous like period. There is considerable surplus remaining in the State yet to be exported, and vessels enough on the berth or chartered to convey the same to the United Kingdom. The market is at this writing very slack under the influence of unfavorable Liverpool advices.

Home Produce Market

Since our last weekly review the weather has settled down into that of genuine Spring, and we are justified at last in saying that our long rainy winter is over. Business to-day seems to have received a slight impetus, and is evidently more active than for some weeks past. The branch more specially under review, though not so lively as in some former seasons is generally encouraging.

WHEAT—The last few days has witnessed no change in the Liverpool market, but the inquiry here concerning that, is not so directly urged as some time since, as it is doubtful if we had any more vessels at this port during the current harvest year. Some shipments are being made, and will continue to San Francisco until a good portion of the surplus yet in the interior is worked off. For this purpose the offer is about $1 50 per cental, on which figure a slight advance may be obtained for choice milling. Quite large receipts are reaching the warehouses here.

FLOUR—A decided decline has taken place, owing to the lessened demand for wheat, and we quote extra brands at $5 per barrel, common country and outside brands at $4@$4 50, superfine, $3 75@$4. The market is well supplied at these rates and trade reported dull.

OATS—During the past few days the demand has been quite brisk, and competition among buyers has kept prices up to all the San Francisco market will bear. The receipts gradually less on as the season progresses, and we are informed that a few thousand bushels more will exhaust the surplus. At present dealers are free to offer 70 cents per bushel sacks included, and 2 cents per pound could probably be obtained for choice lots.

BARLEY—We note a dull market and quotations nominal at $1 60 per cental. But little is offering. Small lots could be placed to advantage.

FEED—The market is not so well supplied as at former periods in the season, especially with bran, which has advanced to $20 per ton with sacks. Chops and Middlings are firm, but prices are unchanged.

HAY—We quote good timothy at $15 on the wharf, jobbing at $18@20. Of other varieties, wild bottom is dull at $8@9, and bunch grass $12@16.

GRAHAM FLOUR—A very fair demand exists at our former quotations of $2 50@2 75 per bale.

BUCKWHEAT FLOUR—But little doing; quotations nominally given at $6 50 per 100 pounds.

OATMEAL—Supplies from our State mills are quite adequate to the demand, and quotations are steady at $5 50@10 50 per cwt.

HOMINY—Market quotable at $5@6 50 ⅌ 100 lbs.

POTATOES—The supply is more than sufficient to fill all present demand. A fair quotation is 40 cents per bushel, as producers will not often sell for less, but dealers are indifferent about giving orders at that figure, except to meet immediate wants.

ONIONS—There is no material change to note though prices seem a little weaker. One firm controls the market for shipping. We quote at 2½@3c as the maximum.

APPLES—The receipts are growing less and but few varieties are now plentiful in the market. The best varieties command $1 10@1 25 per box, packed, and 2c ⅌ pound from wagons.

BUTTER—A great variety as to quality and a large quantity is in the market. The best in rolls, if fresh, is worth 27 cents per pound. Much that is sent in by country merchants is bad and difficult to dispose of at any price.

CHEESE—No 1 Oregon made is in the market in liberal supply at 17@18c per lb.

EGGS—The receipts of the week have been somewhat less than last, and prices have ruled a trifle better. We quote at 18c per dozen.

BACON—The dullness in our home market continues unabated and the large stocks in the hands of dealers together with dull markets abroad, preclude all hopes of any speedy rise. We quote for common lots of country-cured sides 10@11c per lb; shoulders, 9c, hams, 14c,—sugar cured worth about 2 cents advance.

POULTRY—The market is in limited supply and prices are tending decidedly upward for good lots of chickens which are quotable at $4 50@5 per dozen.

LARD—Quotations remain at 10@11c ⅌ lb in kegs, and 12@13c in tins. The demand is perhaps, rather better.

FRESH MEATS—Good mutton sheep are selling on foot at $3 50@4 per head, beef 6@7c ⅌ lb, and dressed hogs 6@7c ⅌ lb. The supply fair.

TALLOW—The ruling quotations are 7@8c ⅌ lb.

HIDES—Considerable shipments have been made, and dealers are free buyers at 7@8c ⅌ lb for green and salted, and 16@17c for dry.

WOOL—Inquiry in regard to the future of prices in our home market elicits but little positive information, further than it is thought that the spring clip will command about 27½@30 cents per pound.

Markets

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—Flour very quiet, best extra $[illegible] 5@5 75 for jobbing lots.

Wheat—Shippers are not willing to pay over $1 80 to $1 82½, a small lot of milling sold at $9 50.

Barley—1,000 sacks feed at $1 20. 200 sacks brewing $1 [illegible].

Oats—200 sacks, good fed $2 30, and a small lot of inferior Oregon realized $2 27½.

Hay—From $12 to $20.

Bran—The mill price raised to $19, middlings, the price has been raised to $24.

Potatoes—Bodega and Petaluma, 60@80c, Humboldt, 90c@$1 10.

Provisions—25 tierces Eastern sugar cured hams 14½c. Whittaker's are worth 16c; dried beef and are going at 14@17 cents per pound.

Wool—The latest mail advices from the East report the market very unsettled on account of a flurry in the gold market. Sales at Boston for the week were about 780,000 pounds including California fall at 20@26 cents, and California spring at 33 to 35 cents; the stock of California there is moderate.

NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES

Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary.

623 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases (of years standing) and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.

DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary, 623 Kearny street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him.

The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.

Horrible Diseases.

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering out a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible, life-destroying maladies—see that they are cured and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to DR. GIBBON, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate case, without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.

Seminal Weakness.

Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz. Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, feted breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.

MARRIED MEN.

Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them nor delay to obtain immediate relief.

DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.

CURED AT HOME.

Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars coin, in registered letter through the Postoffice or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union.

All communications strictly confidential.

Caution to the Unfortunate.

Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders who, with bogus sworn-to certificates, dupe the unwary: one of the self styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, are tradesmen and became too lazy too work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence office keepers, etc. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry—it will cost you nothing, and may save you many regrets, for, as advertising physicians in eight cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, pretended patients' letters, etc. Dr. Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his offices of his ability to treat diseases that he proposes to cure.

Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearney street, corner Commercial, San Francisco, Post Office Box 1,957.

REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE LETTER.

Consultations FREE.

☞ Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the Daily Oregonian. ly6dapt
